Stabilizing Pendant

The Stabilizing Pendant is a small glass pendant embedded with a thin strip of gold in a high-grade vacuum which is carrier of resonance patterns.

This pendant can assist the wearer wherever there is unstable communication between the internal and the external. Sensitive individuals are inclined to have a vulnerable, sensitive nervous system and often lack a sufficiently «thick skin» to protect them from feelings of being inundated by the outside world, both by people and by their environment. For example the Stabilizing Pendant is suitable for anyone experiencing feelings of instability, insecurity, fragility, fear of exams, pressure to perform, or over-stimulation. It can also protect during convalescence. The Stabilizing Pendant helps the individuals build a more powerful energy screen, and as a result they feel more stable and grounded, and experience better concentration and an improved sense of well-being.

Application

The Stabilizing Pendant is an energy device developed by the Institute for Bioinformation in Zurich/Switzerland. It should be worn about 7 cm below the collar-bone on a silk or natural cord, not metal (gold or silver). The Stalizing Pendant can be worn in a top pocket or inside a bra, if a cord around the neck is not convenient. It is advisable not to wear the pendant during the night.

Don't pass the pendants on to anyone else unless your mutual energy field with this second person is very good indeed. This is because wearing the pendants generates an interactive field between it and the wearer, and not everyone can comfortably share such an energy potential with anyone else.
